Author Bio and Contact Information

MICHAEL ISENBERG has had a checkered career as a plant automation engineer, Six Sigma Black Belt, weapons merchant, astrophysicist, and manufacturer of cigarette butts.

He was awoken from his dogmatic slumber and began blogging in 2007 in response to the Bush Administration's warrantless wiretapping of American citizens.

His first novel, Full Asylum, was published in 2012. It shows what America will look like if it continues on the path of big government. But since George Orwell and Ayn Rand already wrote the grim version of that story, Isenberg wrote a comedy.

Today, he writes primarily about Islam, which he first researched in the wake of the 9/11 attacks. He found both its achievements and its self-inflicted collapse during the Middle Ages so fascinating, he had to tell the story. 2018's The Thread of Reason is the result. He covers more recent events in his blog, Islam: the Good, the Bad, and the Everyday.

Dr. Isenberg earned his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago and has published papers on gamma-ray bursts, huge explosions in space whose origins baffled scientists for decades. He resides in New England with 912 books and his memories of his dear, departed cat, Lady Jane Grey.
